Columbus Code Camp Needs Your Help

The 2016 Code camp is coming Saturday, Oct. 22, to the Rev1 Ventures (formerly TechColumbus) building at 1275 Kinnear Road. What's a code camp? It's a free daylong volunteer-run vendor-agnostic community event where software developers learn about new technology from their peers. Everyone is welcome to attend and speak, but we need your help to make it happen. We need sponsors to help purchase food and materials for presenters and attendees. We also welcome any promotional material that might be suitable for inclusion in a "swag bag" or for door prizes.

Organized by local developers, the Code Camp follows these principles.
It is:

- by and for the developer community
- free
- community-developed material
- only code – no fluff
- outside working hours

Sessions range from chalk talks to tutorials and more formal presentations. There will be a mix of presenters – some will be experienced public speakers, some may be making their first-ever public presentation.

Typically over 200 folks–from students to seasoned professionals–attended the code camp from around the state. Don't miss this opportunity to put your company's name in front of Ohio's hardcore software developers.
